

Connect. Communicate. Collaborate

Celebrating the Launch of CAREN- a perspective from DANTE

Matthew Scott
DANTE

21 September 2010

DANTE's involvement in Regional development programmes

Connect. Communicate. Collaborate

- DANTE's has a long and successful record in managing Regional R&E network development programmes on behalf of the EC.
- However its the beneficiaries of these programmes that are the main priority for such projects
- DANTE sees its success in being able to assist such regional projects to
 - Establish a sustainable long term solution that
 - Helps researchers collaborate on a worldwide basis
 - Breaks down issues of 'digital divide'
 - Brings communities together to leverage on the huge potential societal and scientific benefits that better e-infrastructure can bring

DANTE's involvement in CAREN

Connect. Communicate. Collaborate

- CAREN builds on the successful and pioneering work carried out by the Silk project backed by NATO
- Now a new phase has begun
 - Higher capacities and lower prices have been achieved
- The project team lead by David West (incl Robert, Istvan and Askar) has worked very hard to achieve this major first step for CAREN
 - Still much scope for improvement though!
 - Retendering for higher capacities and better pricing
 - Geographic inclusion of more NRENs

CAREN challenges

Connect. Communicate. Collaborate

- Small number of NRENs connected
 - Difficult for long term financial stability
 - Eg GEANT now connects 34 NRENs directly – much less susceptible to impact from new joiners and leavers
 - Need consistent involvement of regional NRENs to act together for economies of scale in procurement
 - Cost sharing links requires NRENs to share the burden of different costs across the backbone for the collective benefit
- Suppliers need to understand the longer term benefits of providing low cost high capacities
 - Unlocks demand – increasing usage and increased investment in e-infrastructures
- Users need to become aware of the potential
 - increasing demand will bring better value for money

CAREN on the world map

Connect. Communicate. Collaborate

CLARA: successful role model for CAREN

Started from small beginnings as AIDCO funded 'ALICE' project

Now very close group of NRENs working together with common objectives operating a very large network across Latin America

Connect. Communicate. Collaborate

Summary

- DANTE is delighted to share this milestone with you
- Encouraged by all the support from the respective ministries and the EC
- Looking forward to a bigger faster cheaper network connecting more NRENs and their users